

Phoenix, Clark College art and literary magazine wins again

PHOENIX, the prize-winning student art and literary magazine of Clark College, has been honored again, this time in the national Community College Humanities Association's Literary Magazine Competition. The 2006 PHOENIX won second place in the Pacific-Western Division.

The PHOENIX staff, including business manager Daniel Borgen, graphics assistant Anne Carpenter, literary editor Shane Cone, photographer editor Mary Hammond and graphics editor Kindra Kepler. Rita Carey, Professor of English, is the Literary Advisor and Kathrena Halsinger, Professor of Art at Clark, is the Art Advisor.

PHOENIX has earned awards from the Washington Community and Technical Colleges Humanities Association and the American Scholastic Press Association, where the magazine also won first place honors in 2001. In 2004, it received top honors in the 2004 Scholastic Yearbook and Magazine Awards, presented by the American Scholastic Press Association. Competing with colleges and universities across the country, PHOENIX was awarded first place with special merit for colleges and universities with enrollment of more than 2501 students.

Muslims, Jews and Christians preparing Saturday lunch

The day-long "How Strangers Become Neighbors," a conflict resolution program presented Saturday, Oct. 28, by Vancouver/Clark County Community Mediation Services and the Greater Vancouver Interfaith Association, is punctuated with a luncheon prepared by Muslim, Jewish and Christian members of the local interfaith association.

There is no charge for the event in the First Congregational Church, 1220 NE 68th Street. However donations will be accepted. Registration begins at 8:30 a.m. Call 619-1153 for further information.

Lifeline Connections sets auction for Saturday, Nov. 4

The second annual "Power of the Purse Brunch and Auction" benefiting Lifeline Connections Family Services Programs is 9:30 a.m. to noon, Saturday, Nov. 4, in the Hilton Vancouver Washington, reports honorary chairwoman Val Ogden.

Auction items are purses of all kinds, new and used, according to Ogden. Mistress of ceremonies for $25 event is Stephanie Strickland, News Channel 8 health reporter.

For further information, send an email message to Joyce Malin, customwriting@comcast.net.

Turn clocks back Monday

An extra hour, derived from going off daylight saving time Sunday, doesn't amount to nearly what an extra hour would be on Monday morning. Remember, though, that church will be an hour later Sunday, as will all scheduled television programs. Wait until the alarm goes off Monday morning to correct to standard time.
