

Re-enactors putting on really big show in Fort Vancouver this evening and tomorrow

There are at least seven destinations, all of them inside the stockade walls of the recreated Hudson's Bay Company Fort Vancouver in the Vancouver National Historic Reserve, that deserve a visitor's attention tonight and Saturday night during the National Park Service's annual Candlelight tours.

And they are all free.

Tours, led by re-enactors, are between 7 and 10 p.m. This year, the history lessons center on what happened at the fort after an American ship that had stopped at the Columbia River site of Fort Vancouver sank.

Visitors will be taken through the chief factor's house, the bake house, blacksmith shop, Indian trade shop, counting house, carpenter shop and the fur store warehouse.

There are two days of history packed into the two events, according to chief park ranger, Greg Shine. He urges visitors to take part in both nights. For further information, call Shine at 816-6231.

CVTV to cablecast election results from Clark College Tuesday night

Tuesday, Sept. 19, primary election results will be posted in Gaiser Hall at Clark College shortly after the polls close at 8 p.m.

Election results along with commentary from candidates and political pundits, will be cablecast live over CVTV Channel 23, led by CVTV executive producer Donna Mason. Assisting Mason will be Colleen Kawahara and Kim Kapp.
