Vancouver's Downtown Association invites everyone to dinner meeting

The quarterly meeting of Vancouver's Downtown Association is open to everyone who is "interested in working, living or playing in greater downtown Vancouver," reports association vice president Linda Glover.

The barbecue dinner meeting in the Farmers Market Food Court, 8th and Esther Streets, is 6 to 8 p.m. Thursday, June 22. Speakers are Bob Farrell, lecturer, and author of Give 'em the Pickle, Brad Arntson, Albina Fuel, and John Cameron, Harvest Capital Investors.

The theme of the event is: "Why all of downtown is a wonderful place to live, work and play."

For reservations, call Glover at 695-6443. Donations for the dinner will be accepted.

Court-appointed special advocates too few to help meth addict's children

There are too few court-appointed special advocates to handle the needs of Clark County children of meth addicts, the YWCA of Clark County reports.

There is a waiting list of 230 Clark County children whose special needs as children of meth addicts are going unfilled, says Jo Waddell, director of the CASA program at the local YWCA.

Currently there are 607 children who qualify for court-appointed special advocates. Last year, 264 new children became wards of the court in Clark County. Eighty-five percent of abuse and neglect cases involved methamphetamine.

The YWCA provides training for volunteer advocates, according to Waddell. For further information, call Waddell at 906-9109.

Jeanne Bennett and Geoff Knapp appointed to Community Choices 2010

Jeanne Bennett, director of Workforce Programs for Educational Service District 112, and Geoff Knapp, public affairs and communications coordinator for the county Department of Community Services, have been appointed to the board of directors of Community Choices 2010.

Formed in 1993, Community Choices 2010 is a community-based nonprofit organization funded by a variety of sources, including local corporations and governmental agencies. The organization, in addition to building a data-driven awareness of the overall health of the community, collaborates with other community partners to develop health promotion strategies.
